Venezuela's bolivars, biggest currency of any country in history, is the worst performing currency in the world over the last 30 years. "I want to take out dollars right now," a Venezuelan pointed out the other day, "but I don't have the dollars to buy anything. How will I pay the baker? I don't have anything at home to sell. What will I do if I run out of groceries?" EUR/USD -- this chart is the longest in recorded timespan, going back to the 1950's "How will I pay the rent?" Post #8 We found the outboard. No water to rescue it's poor skinny occupants and no time to explore the area. After a speedboat ride out of the crocodile infested water we were met by a massive tentacled creature. We took a look at the situation – it had killed a young turtle and was sniffing its body like a bloodhound. I've never seen a smaller version of a crocodile – measuring 50cm (20in) long – but you couldn't fault its appearance. A giant in stature, and no doubt in appearance – and breeding habits. I would have a blast trying to mess with it. The flesh in its neck was a bright red colour – an interesting sign. The next day we followed a boat track to a herd of elephants. They were the size of a bull calf, with scars from hooves and teeth. Their skin was the texture of crepe, and they munched on what appeared to be tree branches. We walked up the hill from where we were photographing to where they were bedded down, and could see (in the distance) that they were likely to be awake. The boat
