Factors affecting prognosis of subarachnoid hemorrhage: implications for secondary prevention. Our objective was to analyze the prognosis of subarachnoid hemorrhage in relation to comorbidities and risk factors identified by prospective and retrospective studies, particularly with respect to secondary prevention practices. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke (NINDS) databases were used to select patients aged 15-49 with a primary diagnosis of subarachnoid hemorrhage between 1990 and 2001. Data were collected on age, ethnicity, and gender; hospital of initial presentation; frequency of comorbidities, including cardiovascular, chronic pulmonary, neuropsychiatric, renal, and metabolic; risk factors; and frequency of secondary prevention practices. The expected risk-adjusted 28-day mortality rate was calculated, and variations in mortality rates were analyzed. The median age at subarachnoid hemorrhage was 31 years, and overall mortality rates ranged from 9.1% for patients aged 15-39 and 60.8% for patients aged 30-49. Only 6 patients (0.5%) suffered strokes outside the natural course of aneurysmal subarachnoid hemorrhage. Comorbidities and risk factors as defined by various studies were generally similar between patients who did and did not die

Awake. You wake up. You look around. It's a dream. Then reality hits. Your body is back in the real world. But it's the middle of the night. All the lights are out, and you can't move. There's a computer nearby, and it can connect you to the internet. If you read the screen, it's not reassuring. You're going to have a hard time falling back asleep... Minimalism meets minimalism in a dark and lonely future where the protagonists have to survive. You wake up in this filthy, futuristic spaceship, and your only companion is a mysterious robot named Callie. Use your imagination and memory to explore the strange, lonely world you've found yourself in. Features: - Stunning VR visual effects. - A 2D, head-tracking first-person exploration. - A puzzle-solving game for people who like a walk on the dark side. - An omniscient AI. Can you trust your emotions? - An interesting and unique story for an immersive experience. Friday, 1 July 2007 They've been here for years... Chewbacca lives among them! The last week of the 2006-2007 school term has been an eye-opener for me, both in the classroom and at home. The year has flown by so fast, and my new students are going through many changes. They seem to be adapting well to their new surroundings, and their studies have become more focused and organized. While the focus of mathematics is still mainly calculations, they are also writing mathematically in their books. It has also become clear that they are very curious about the world around them. Their questions from the playground to their teachers are numerous, and although they seem simple, they are usually very insightful. The daily news has left some people gasping and feeling quite appalled at the invasion of Iraq, while the US is also preparing its troops for combat. This has been an eye-opener for me because, in addition to peace being the better option, the solution to poverty and health care in developing nations should come first. I understand that this may be best left to other people, but when you see people dying all around you everyday, you can't stand by and do nothing, even if that means not going to school tomorrow and losing your job. Hello kind sirs! My name is Jerry. I am an artist, musician, avid gamer, movie and television watcher, and beer drinker. I've been working on art projects on and off for the past few years, with little success until now! I am pretty passionate about this game and the people that play it. I can't wait to see it get all it deserves! P.S. - I'm a woman and a nerd.

Currently working on this project: - Recording the soundtrack for the game- Adding more content to the website and forums- Working on the Kickstarter campaign- Designing the cover art- Adding more artwork- Work on art development Please follow the project and don't be afraid to look at this thread! The project is still in the early stages and the forums are still empty, so they might get a little crowded as the project progresses. Boo! I'm Jerry and I do kind of something similar, in that I create music for videos but I use a computer to make them. I sort of fell into it, but I really enjoy it and it is what I do now. I was wondering if you would consider using my art for the cover of the game? I could send you some of my art and if you like it, I could send you my finished music for your approval too. I don't want to sell my music, but if you liked it, I can make it available for purchase. It's basically for free. If you're interested in a partnership, I'd be happy to hear from you. I don't make a lot of money off of it but it's something that I enjoy and it's something I do well! Feel free to message me on Twitter if you'd like. I'd like to thank you for the input and interest, and I look forward to discussing more. Your Artwork looks fantastic! I think it would be perfect for the cover art, however I have to warn you about a few things. We're going to need to expand and redesign the UI to match some of these new skins, and there may be some wonky effects and such as we try to sort it out. The other thing is that the tile system we're thinking of is a bit different. We're going to be replacing it with a more organic and natural style. We're looking at changing the system from a tile-based system to a more sort-of old school style, and that's going to

What's new in Useless Box: The Game:

City are finally ready to announce their debut studio album 'Hymn to the Home' and have now placed an early listen right here on their Facebook page. Listen to 'Hymn to the Home' in full RIGHT HERE! The four-piece met in 2014, instantly bonding over a shared love for the '80s. They started jamming on guitar and drumming together as Friends, but were soon tasked with recording the majority of the album in just a single week. They moved into their new home in Doncaster and Gatorade was on hand to promote their innovative science behind their new album. Following this, they started the 'Twinkie The Doncaster Duckie' release party on Facebook Live to introduce their new friends. They are completely self-funded and are able to give the money away to their favorite charities! "It's become a bit of a cult thing," says lead singer Garrett St Omer, "but it's been quite difficult. We started the project and initially didn't know if it would work or not. We didn't really want to do it. We kind of had to charge forward which basically translates to absolutely no money, so we've always had a real tough time." "We spent a lot of time in the beginning trying to work out what the best way to fund the project was and eventually a friend from the States woke us up and told us we should go with Kickstarter. It worked so well that they reversed their decision on another album they funded. It's been really unexpected." "One of our focuses is to bring music and comedy together," says bassist Graeme Kearsley. "We play songs from their new album as well as garage, ska and disco classics. You might hear some 'quirky' songs that don't fit into any specific genre and a few more dancey numbers. We also mention the bands that inspire us in our songs like U2 and Ramones."

"Shows like Saturday Kitchen, Doncaster Castle and KFAK helped us get started in this world," he continues. "Whether we're doing a sponsored meet and greet with the entire line up for the Doncaster Gala or just a casual meet and greet, people like to get to know the band from the heart. We're not a flash in the
